

COACH

Coaches work closely with the players, to motivate them, identify their strengths and weaknesses and make sure they are playing at their best. They will develop strategies and analyse opponents in order to win as many matches – and tournaments – as possible.

SKILLS NEEDED

- Communication
- Analysing
- Playing Experience
- Passionate
- Presentation
- Identifying Talent
- Knowledgeable

HOURS/SALARY

As with most esports roles, it varies. For some examples, in the NLC (the top level of UK League of Legends), coaches get between £400 to £1,000 or even up to £2,000 per month with the best teams. In the mid-tier UKLC, coaches could be on around £50-500 per month.

There's the opportunity to earn more by offering one-on-one coaching too. Some streamers offer coaching services, charging anything from £20 to £100 or beyond for a session, depending on their skill level, coaching technique and reputation. year. Pay varies – top freelancer rates are around €1,000 per day, though this can be considerably more. Smaller organisers may pay £150-200+ per caster, per day.